PROPHECY

JACK BOYD: Your line of Fate points to the Mt. of the Sun which shows me that you will become a famous celebrity. Eight years from now you will replace Charles Atlas as the mightiest man in the world.

ANNE NELSON: I can see you among crowds of people. You are always talking, talking, talking. You are trying to prevent a world crisis with Russia. Ah, you succeed—the Russians can't get a word in edge-wise.

JIMMY POWELL: I see many cars. They are all going in the same direction. There is a traffic jam. Oh, now I can see the trouble—there is a huge neon sign ahead saying, "Drive in and Be Sure and Secure at Powell's—Friendly Texaco Station."

CORRINE REAMS: Your fate line says that you will realize your ambition. You will become a Power's model—but, your heart line tells me that you will finally settle down to married life and raising Wallace, Jr.

BILLY BOYD: Your head line says that you will not have to worry any more. Your financial troubles are over. You will walk down the street in your zoot suit and people will raise their hats as the new manager and owner of the Nottawa Theatre and Company.

MARJORIE ADAMS: This line to Mt. Saturn tells me that you will not regret your years of experience in Home Ec. at B. H. S. I can see you and your family at the dinner table. D. W. is growing fat. He is smiling at you and telling you something about "feet." Oh, yes, here it is—"Shore do loves yar pickled pigs feet, Margie, honey."

BETTY FISHER: Your fate line tells me that your desire to be a career girl will be fulfilled. I see crowds of people gathered around billboards, I see startling headlines, I see radio commentators broadcasting their news flash. And what are they all saying? "Katherine Cornel flabbergasted—Betty Fisher gets role of Juliet."

JIMMIE ROGERS: This line to Mt. Mercury tells me you are very stubborn. You will get offers from Notre Dame, Southern California, Georgia Tech, but you will still stay at B. H. S. and coach "The Champs."

JANET REYNOLDS: Your head line runs into your heart line. That means you will be a man-hater until you are 28. I see you in a garden, kneeling. You seem to be asking for something. Ah, now you are smiling. You get up. Oh, yes, you have just proposed to Bob Wadill.

BILL RIDDICK: I see you in the Far East. You are traveling with a rich Sultan and his train. The Sultan looks worried. He is explaining to you his failure in managing his harem. I see a lonsome look come into your eyes. Says you—"Heck, what you need is a little experience at B. C. G."

JULIA STARKEY: I can see you being interviewed by many reporters. You have become a famous authoress. Your latest book is entitled "How To Succeed," and you have dedicated it to Mrs. Jordan's most intelligent English Class—the class of '48.

WILLIAM NUNNELLY: I see you in Mexico. You are the prosperous owner of a gold mine. Two months later you will return to the U. S., penniless. Why are you so poor? You spent all your money on a seno—"Retta."

SARAH LEWIS: I read a most successful married life in your palm. You and Mr. Wills will have a tendency to quarrel but you will move to the metropolis of Blackstone and family harmony will be restored.

BILLY THOMAS: This line stops at Mt. Jupiter which means you will be a contractor. I can see you now, bending over a drawing of a very complicated design. Ah, it's a dream house and you will soon get a "Pat"-ent for it.

JOE JERNIGAN: You are going to cause great excitement in the Bureau of Standards ten years from now. I can see the experts bending over a bottle of "Jernigan Best" or "Nature's Perfection." That's hair tonic, of course.

DAVID GREENE: Mt. Apollo shows your creative ability. It is 1960. I can see a crowd gathering around a display window at Miller and Rhoads. The window is famous as D. Greene's original. The dresses in the window are now touching the floor.

L. G. BARNES: Your head line tells me that you are very daring. I see you racing down the track to the finishing line. The crowds roar. You have just broken the world speed record with your supersonic motorcycle which you designed for eluding the unsuspecting cops of Blackstone.

DOUGLAS COLEBURN: I see a stage and a great crowd of people. They are calling for you again. You keep returning. Next day the newspapers greet you as a second Lauritz Melchior.

JOHN MEYER: Your hand tells me that you are the silent type. I see you ten years from now. You are the inventor of a new substitute for the voice.

BILL MEYER: You feel quite different from your brother. You will become a most famous tobacco auctioneer.

LAURA RODENHIZER: I see you walking down a street in Crewe. You are smiling at a very tall, blonde man. He is your future husband, "Gyp" Ellett.

MARJORIE PERKINSON: The line to Mt. Jupiter means success. I see you as the head buyer for the largest department store in the world—Seay-Bagley Co.

EDWIN POMEROY: Ten years from now you will be elected to the Senate. I can see you now delivering one of your most famous speeches. You are trying to get a bill passed prohibiting exams. in high schools. Your chief arguments are—that it causes brain fever and heart failure.

JACK WHITE: You will be a famous surgeon twenty years from now. I can see you bending over an operating table. There is a breathless silence as you bring down your knife expertly. Then you hold up something. "Hello, there, I knew that cat had swallowed my glasses."

STEVE ROWLETT: Six years from now you will be at the height of your career, you will receive hundreds of fan letters, the ladies will swoon at you, the men will cheer you, the children laugh at you. You will be famous, as you are the author of the jokes on "It Pays to be Ignorant."

ROXIE ANNE FORE: I see you among a large group of children. You are giving music lessons to your ten children.

RICHARD LEE: I see you walking down the street with a huge bag of groceries. You are going toward our huge high school. You enter the cafeteria and throw down your bundle. You are the new chef of our fashionable cafeteria.

BRANCH BRAGG: You are waiting outside a door. The door opens. You faint as you receive the news that you have made—All American in Football.

DONALD BURNETTE: You are playing second base with the New York Yankees.

GWEN DAVIS: I see you as the tough top-sergeant bossing the Wac Division at Camp Pickett.

ELEANOR JOHNSON: I see you as the first woman baseball coach at B. C. G.

FRANCES WILLIAMS: I see a large laboratory—you are making an experiment with hydrogen-sulfide.

GENE POWELL: I see you as the owner of Leggett's Drug Store.

GLENN POWELL: I see you as a successful painter of Modern Art in New York.

S.C.A. Sponsors Magazine Campaign

On Monday, October 27, the students of Blackstone High School with the sixth and seventh grades assembled in the auditorium to get instructions from Mr. Guiserman, representative of the Curtis Publishing Co. to carry on the annual magazine campaign. This year the campaign is being sponsored by the S. C. P. M. No admission was charged. Each homeroom representative is responsible for the sales in his room. The purpose of this campaign is to raise money to finance the S. C. A. for the year 1947-48. We also plan to work toward money for an inter-communicative system for the school. For the first prize there will be a choice of a bicycle, radio or boy's or girl's Bulova wrist watch. The student who sells the most subscriptions to the Holiday magazine will receive a toy dog.

Miss Hammock's sophomores have sold the most subscriptions. The campaign will end on November 1.

Halloween Fair, Huge Success

Schoolfield To Play Here Friday Night

Blackstone High School has completed its first season in Virginia High School League competition by defeating eight foes and tying another to win the District Championship. The only team out of its class which the Rams met was Petersburg who turned back the Black and Maroon by a 38-0 count. The Rams have run up a very impressive total of 325 points for their victories and have had only 45 scored against them. Lawrenceville was the only team in the District to cross the last white stripe, and this ball team kept the Blackstones on the lower end of the score until the final three minutes when the home team scored 7 points to earn a tie.
